

SELWYN HOUSE NEWSLETTER

Vol. 11 No. 3

October 1984

A word from the Chairman of the Board

Robert Manion, the Headmaster of the School from 1981 to 1984 resigned last July. Bob came to the School from St. George's in Toronto where he had served as Director of Studies.

During his tenure as Headmaster, Bob restructured Selwyn House into the Elementary School and the Secondary School thus eliminating the old divisions between the Junior School, the Middle School and the Senior School. This reorganization has enabled the School to operate more efficiently and cohesively.

In addition, he implemented a Student Council organization and a system of popular votes for prefects. He supervised the introduction of the computer science programme so that this course is now offered in all grades and was also responsible for Selwyn House School becoming a member of the Cum Laude Society.

The School is grateful to Bob for his contribution to the School and we wish he and Fran every success in the future. Bob is presently pursuing graduate studies at Harvard University and they are expecting their first child in December.

During the summer, the Board of Directors of the School decided that the Heads of the Elementary and the Secondary School, Mr. Alain Weber and Mr. Robin Wearing respectively, would be responsible for the administration of the School until a new Headmaster takes office. The School is being administered efficiently and competently under their leadership and their dedication during the summer months and this term have been greatly appreciated.

A Search Committee has been appointed to select candidates for the new Headmaster. This Committee consists of four Board Members: Mr. Derek Drummond, the Chairman of the School's Academic Committee, is serving as Chairman of the Search Committee; Mr. Tom Birks, the Chairman of the Finance Committee and the School's Treasurer; Mrs. Ronald T. Riley, the Chairman of the Athletics and Extra-curricular Committee; and Mr. Timothy R. Carsley, the Chairman of the Board as an ex-officio member. This Committee is in the process of recommending suitable candidates to the Board for the position of the new Headmaster.

Applications for Headmaster were required to be submitted by September 28th, 1984. The Board expects to announce the appointment of a new Headmaster before the end of this School term.

A Shakespearean feast for seniors

An enthusiastic and fun-loving group of thirty boys from Grades 9 and 10 took in the Stratford Festival from August 29 to September 1. Along with chaperones Judy Clark, Virginia Ferguson, Byron Harker, and Warren Reid, they saw A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM, ROMEO AND JULIET, THE MERCHANT OF VENICE, and THE MIKADO, all of them splendidly produced and well acted. John Neville's Shylock may well have been the highlight of the performances, though most of the group were fascinated with the performances of Old Boy Jefferson Mappin (Class of '72), who played minor roles in all the Shakespearean plays. Jefferson was kind enough to join us on a tour of the stage and the back-stage area and to answer questions afterwards: a real inspiration to some of our aspiring actors in the group. The Grade 10 boys took a side-trip to the University of Waterloo one day, and the whole trip was rounded out with visits to downtown Toronto and Queen's University in Kingston.

It was a successful and highly popular trip, one we hope to repeat next year.

Teaching staff adds six new faces

The opening staff meeting on August 27 included the welcoming of six new members to the teaching staff.

Steve Mitchell joins the physical education department to fill the vacancy created by the appointments of Mr. Robin Wearing to Director of the Secondary School and Mr. Pierre Beauchamp to the position of head of the department. Mr. Mitchell, a graduate of Bishop's and McGill, previously taught at Centennial Regional High School.

Kathy McKnight is a graduate of Queen's University. Her assignment is Grade 4 generalist and English Grade 7.

Strong showing by mathematicians

Selwyn House participated again this year in the Canadian Mathematics Competition. The competition is made up of three contests: the Pascal Contest for Grade 9, the Cayley Contest for Grade 10 and the Fermat Contest in Grade 11. Last February's competition attracted almost 45,000 participants from over 3,000 schools across Canada.

Our top three finishers in Grade 9 were Michael Zenaitis, Chris Clark and Nicholas Adamson. Their aggregate score placed them second of 72 Quebec schools. Both Michael and Chris scored 136.25 out of 150 possible points, the second highest score in the province.

Chris Naudie, Chris Pratley and the dark horse, Jake Richler were the top three in the Cayley Contest. As a team, they placed fourth of 73 schools in the province.

Ferhaan Ahmad, Mikael Sandblom and Sunny Handa were our top finishers in Grade 11. Their combined score placed them seventh of 77 schools in Quebec.

Miss McKnight's appointment fills the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. Marsh.

Sally Saxe actually joined the staff last year filling a temporary vacancy created by Carol Manning's leave of absence. This year she occupies a new position resulting from the formation of a second grade one class. Mrs. Saxe is a graduate of Mount Allison and previously taught for the P.S.B.G.M. and The Study.

Dorothy Martin fills the part time librarian technician position vacated by Mrs. Claener. Dorothy is a graduate of McGill and Concordia.

David Booth fills a newly created position in the computer science department resulting from the School's commitment to provide increased computer science education. David is a graduate of Trent University and U. of T. David previously taught at Columbia Secondary School, Toronto.

Pat Shannon is replacing Geoff Dowd, presently on sabbatical pursuing graduate studies at Queen's University. Pat is a graduate of McGill and has completed his first year of law at the University of Ottawa. Pat has a strong interest in bluegrass banjo music.

Mother Nature fails to intimidate Leadership Weekenders

On September 21, the autumn air lingering cold and crisp, the class of '85 landed down in Rouge River Country, Quebec for the sixth annual leadership weekend; the fall classic.

"So the bus broke down, relax."

"Sir, my contact lense case and my pills, and my sleeping bag are on that bus —"

The objects were twofold: to better understand group dynamics, and to develop leadership inclinations.

"But sir, you see those yellow flowers?"

"You mean the ones all around the tent?"

"Yeah, I'm allergic to them: my face starts to grow if I don't get my medication, which is on the bus that broke down."

"Well don't just stand there. Elect a leader, or something."

Group sessions

The methods included group sessions wherein the traits of a leader were considered, initiative games and collective problem solving.

Temperature and tents fell, while Mr. David William's temper rose, making the first night a sleeplessly unforgettable event.

Kayaking

The first full day was spent kayaking under the instruction of Rod Taylor and facing force fields, piranha infested river crossings and cliffs, high cliffs: simulation games of course.

"This Eskimo roll is no problem...".

"Brace 'till you die, literally."

During the evening guests from Vanier College introduced more group games and the classic film "12 Angry Men" was shown to cap off an exhausting day. Oddly enough there was no nocturnal mayhem that night as Force 4 from 'Nam had declared a cease fire and consented to a truce with the Jackson 9 Victory Tent, the Cleavers, and Frankie Goes To Hoxbury (respectively tents 1, 2, 3).

"My sleeping-bag's been freeze-dried."

White water rafting

The next morning bristled with anticipation and solidified under-garments, yes it was time for white water rafting. After a hearty breakfast, the group set out to confront the wicked white watah rapids. (sic)

"Actually, rope climbing is quite easy. First you wrap your arms and legs around some rope, then you move away in two different directions."

"What do you mean, that was just a warm up?"

"There must be a better method of searching for contact lenses."

"Are you absolutely positive, sir, that piranhas are not native to this lake?"

Moo's memories

At the last dramatic entertainment, Mrs. Marsh saw fit to reawaken my old reputation, which I had hoped was forgotten, as the Minotaur of the Upper Floor. There must have been some justification for it, but I was led to seek evidence that it was perhaps exaggerated. It was not easy, I admit, but a number of occasions on which small boys did not pass me on tiptoe readily recurred to memory.

I certainly did not bring that reputation with me. On my second day at the School, a cheerful junior accosted me with a proprietorial air, and to my utter astonishment introduced me to his form-mates as his Uncle Edward. It was useless for me to protest; his colleagues preferred to believe him rather than a mere teacher. For at least a couple of years I had to accept that forms' greetings as Uncle Edward, and the small boy's parents, for the rest of their lives, always addressed me by that unearned title. It is a treasured memory of mine.

Nor did the senior form betray any notable awe for me. Between them they fostered the legend that one of their number was the scion of Spanish grandees, and I had to endure the extraordinary accent which he at all times adopted in my presence. He was so convincing that I almost accepted the legend. It was dispelled when eventually, on the playing field, I heard him hurling vituperation at an opponent in as sound a Canadian accent as one could wish for. I forget how the jape ended; I vaguely connect it with a gift-wrapped Spanish onion which joined the Christmas gifts which the School then bestowed lavishly on everyone.

It was rather later that one of my science pupils carried his researches to the unorthodox extent of wiring the desk in front of him to an electric battery, and at intervals closing the switch. The first venture provoked quite a sensational reaction in the victim, but it did not last long. Before the period was over, the victim ignored me completely and dealt his persecutor one of the best haymakers I have ever seen delivered in class. I confess that the reprimand I subsequently delivered was completely spoilt by the grin which accompanied it.

I recall one odd occasion when, after I had supervised junior recess, one mistress complained that I had failed to return one of her class. Since it was a wet morning, and we had not been outside, it was difficult to understand the disappearance. My own class enjoyed an unauthorized free period while I solved the mystery. The absentee had wagered his friends that if he vanished, Moo would never know. I eventually found the missing child in a large chest which in those days housed lost property. Whatever reprisal that jape earned came not from me but from his form teacher.

Caricature

Many years later I was confronted, when I entered the classroom, with a caricature of myself affixed to the blackboard. A Minotaur would have destroyed it and devoured the author, but I detected sufficient merit in it to transfer it later, without comment, to my own office. It was a futile gesture. Copies continued to appear to replace those confiscated, until in the end I had to be content not only to allow it to remain to delight everyone, but to give it the approval of autographing it.

But of all the heroes who braved the monster, I like to think most of the boy who stopped me in the corridor and asked me to see the Headmaster. Dr. Speirs was astonished at my intrusion, and implied that the last thing he needed to complete a troubled morning was to see me. The bearer of the original message, when tackled on the question, insisted that he had not said that the Head wished to see me; he had merely asked me to report to Dr. Speirs. He escaped unharmed when, with a cheerful smile, he reminded me that it was April 1.

Mr. E.C. Moody was on the staff of Selwyn House School for a quarter of a century. He is always interested in what is happening at the School and very kindly writes "Moo's Memories" for the Newsletter.

Table No. 17 "rolls" to Ottawa

It was at 4:30 on a sunny Friday afternoon in June that table 17 first started rolling. The table was being pushed to raise money for Donald Marshall, the Micmac Indian who had been unjustly jailed for eleven years, and who was recently compensated for that injustice. Pushing the table were Richard Denis, Étienne Côté, Patrick Jabal, Tom Ford, Eric Szypt, Tim Winn, Adam Bruun and M.N., along with Mr. Nincheri, who offered encouragement and his driving "skills". As the group started on their journey, the Westmount Division of the M.U.C. Police offered a police escort which went on to lead the table to the end of the island with lights flashing. The boys spent that night in Laval.

The next day proved uneventful, with the exception of the police escorts. Unexpected at first, the police officers quickly got into the habit of calling ahead to the next county, so that another police car was always waiting when the first one came out of its jurisdiction. As the sun set, the table rolled to a stop at a dépanneur outside Grenville where it stayed for the night. The "pushers" slept the night at the four-star Delta Motel.

By the third day everyone was really quite tired from the running (the table had to be kept moving at a constant 8 km/hr), but came through nonetheless, especially around 6 p.m. when the table sprinting competition began. (Record holders: Richard Denis and Patrick Jabal at 24 km/hr). For the table 17 members, the day ended outside Gatineau, after thirteen hours and one hundred and two kilometers on the road.

Finally, the highlight of the trip came when the group arrived in Ottawa just in time to be interviewed and to sit down to a delicious lasagna made by Nina, as well as sandwiches and orange juice offered by the Odawa Native People's Group of Ottawa. Even though they missed the Prime Minister, the Table 17'ers did meet Health Minister Monique Bégin, and the National Minister of Youth, as well as Mrs. Flora MacDonald. Everyone enjoyed the trip and thanks are due to Mr. Nincheri, Nina the Chef, the Szpyts, Mrs. Côté, Mrs. Denis, all the police officers who took time off to escort the table, the Odawa Native People's Group and to everyone who either sponsored or helped table 17.

The boys and Mr. Nincheri sat at table 17 in the School dining room every day and during the course of the term the idea was spawned over lunch. The table was equipped with wheels and a steering mechanism and set for lunch for the trip to Ottawa.

"Work Project" underway

This fall marked the beginning of "The Work Project", a programme designed to enhance the curriculum for boys in grades three, four and five. At this time, fifteen students meet twice weekly to explore topics of interest. The boys will be examining the work of professionals and will use this knowledge to solve real life problems using primary research techniques.

Mother Nature failed in her attempt to intimidate this wily crew as perils like the "Hamburger Maker", and "Avalanche" were conquered with expertise and a negligible amount of fatalities.

"Serge, keep your legs up and float with the current, oh and keep your mouth closed."

On the whole leadership weekend was a fun and meaningful experience. The Grade 11 would like to thank all the teachers who were involved for being such great guys (and gals).

"Elect a leader....".

by Dan Nemeth, Jake Richler and Matt Caruso

S.H.S. will be having two follow-ups to Leadership Weekend during the School year. The first one will be this fall. We will keep the Grade 11 boys after School, serve dinner and give them some exercises that will help them to develop leadership qualities.

Truouts for the trip to Finland and Russia.

Bantam Hockey Team to Finland and USSR

On December 26, 1984, the Bantam Hockey Team will depart Montreal for Helsinki and Leningrad. The team will compete in the International World Cup Bantam Hockey Tournament, an eight day event in Helsinki following which they fly to Leningrad. Arrangements have been made to play against two Soviet club teams, farm teams from their National teams, as well as visiting the theatre and sightseeing. The team will return to Montreal on January 14.

This is the first time that a Selwyn House team is participating in international competition outside Canada. This young team (only three of last year's bantams are returning) consists mainly of players from the 83-84 Middle School (Peewee) team coached by Pierre Beauchamp. Training camp will begin the first week in November at the Verdun Auditorium. Mr. Beauchamp predicts an exciting season for this promising team.

Middle School soccer team in Halifax tournament

As this Newsletter goes to press, the Middle School Soccer Team is flying to Halifax to participate in the Canadian Independent Schools Soccer Tournament.

This tournament runs from October 4-6. While in Halifax our team from grade six and seven will be billeted by boys from the Halifax Grammar School. In addition to competing the boys will visit historical and other sites in and around Halifax.

The widespread participation of Independent Schools in this tournament provides an excellent forum for boys to make new friends from all across Canada and share ideas.

Mr J. J. Shannon

It was with great sorrow that we heard of the death of Mr. J. J. Shannon and our heartfelt sympathies go to his wife and family. Jack Shannon had five sons go through Selwyn House School. His dedication, guidance and counsel, both as a Member of the Board and after, were without parallel. Two trees are to be planted beside the front door in memory of Mr. Shannon, one to flower in the spring and the other in the fall. Mr. Alexis Troubetzkoy (Headmaster of S.H.S. during many of the years that Mr. Shannon was on the Board) is giving one tree and the other is from the School so that we may all remember a very exceptional man.

'44 Gavin White wrote from Glasgow that there seemed to be no connection between Selwyn House in Broadstairs, Kent and our School in Montreal. There is an indication that the house itself was called Selwyn House before it became a school. One piece of lore which may be of interest concerns the half-lion roaring away over the word "Veritas" on the Selwyn House (Montreal) crest. This may be a very simplified family crest for the Lucas line, or one of the many Lucas lines. Evidently they tend to have three lions rampant, and this is common to a great many cadet branches, especially those in Ireland. (Captain Algernon Lucas founded Selwyn House School in Montreal in 1908).

Gavin went on to say: "Your history 'Veritas' is much more interesting than most school histories which normally reach depths of dullness only surpassed by histories of commercial enterprises."

(The book "Veritas" A history of Selwyn House School, Montreal 1908-1978 by Edgar C. Moody and Robert A. Speirs may be obtained from the School — $10.00 plus postage.)

'49 Michael Wilson has been given the portfolio of Minister of Finance in the new Conservative Government.
